Knowledge mobilization is about putting available knowledge into active service to benefit society. Both research knowledge and experiential knowledge are worth sharing for the benefit of all. Knowledge mobilization is always about knowledge exchange and it should be mutually beneficial. Please describe how you're planning to share your research findings and the experience with your partners and other UArctic members and Northern communities. There are many ways to develop good knowledge mobilization plans. (Max 300 words)We encourage you to check out the Research Impact Canada Resources page: (https://researchimpact.ca/resources/) for tools and tips you may find useful. We particularly like this knowledge mobilization planning tool for its clarity: http://www.kmbtoolkit.ca/sites/all/themes/kmb/assets/images/Knowledge_Mobilization_Planning_Form.pdf.
